Some Insights on a Typology of French Interactional Prefabricated Formulas in Spoken Corpora

Marie-Sophie Pausé

Abstract: This study deals with interactional prefabricated formulas in French, the usual formulae used in spoken or written interactions, such as comment dire? 'how shall I put it?'; tu parles! 'you bet!'; à tout à l'heure 'see you later'; de rien 'you're welcome'; content de te voir 'nice to see you'; c'est bien 'that's fine'. These expressions, often called "routine formulae", have not been much listed and studied, unlike other types of expressions, although they are very common. We propose a broad typology of these formulas from meta-enunciative formulas (on va dire 'let's say') to direct interactional expressions (c'est bon 'it's OK') or ritual formulas (bonne journée 'have a nice day'). An annotation scheme has been developed to account for the different aspects of these elements including main types, semantic labels, clause types and lemmatization.
